“Lesson Plans” should be included in all Curriculum.

But, stand-alone Lesson Plans Lesson Plans, Lesson Plans Activities, and un-linked Lesson Plans Worksheets will NOT form a proper Curriculum.

It is of utmost necessity that knowledge about “Lesson Plans” is delivered to the Child, in Developmentally Appropriate Format.

For “Lesson Plans” to be delivered to the Child as per – DAP ‘Developmentally Appropriate Practices’ format, it has to follow these – Lesson Plans should be delivered through scientifically researched and coordinated Learning Path. Lesson Plans should be delivered in an coherent manner and not hither thither. Instructional Dialogues, Follow up Activities, Informational Elements, Worksheets, each elements of Lesson Plans has to be Developmentally Appropriate.

Additionally, What has to be ‘taught’ regarding Lesson Plans. How ‘that’ thing about Lesson Plans has to be ‘taught’. The list of such How’s is also very long - how instructional exercises are to be carried out? How activities to be done? How discussion is to be started? How to conduct related thematic activity? How to use Flash Card? How to use worksheets? And much more. All such How’s has been properly addressed in our Curriculum.
E.g. Regarding a ‘particular’ Animal, what holds much importance is –

How appreciation about that ‘animal’ is generated, how beauty of nature is seen by child in that animal.

Also,

- Which Features child observes on its own?
- What Teacher shall explain about that animal?
- Which features makes it fall under a particular classification?
- Which all features shall be emphasized for the child? - What makes it different from other animals?
- What makes it similar to other animals?

Using copied-pasted Lesson Plans 'Activity/Lesson Plan/Worksheets' –

Evaluation Checklist

If all elements regarding “Lesson Plans”, is not properly planned, than it might happen that, instead of benefiting the Child, it may ‘Harm’.

While using just any copied pasted things from here and there in the name of Curriculum, one need to answer these

- Is the Activity/Lesson Plan/Worksheets, most appropriate for that particular topic?

Is the Activity/Lesson Plan/Worksheets, age-appropriate?

Is the Activity/Lesson Plan/Worksheets, most appropriate for the Child?

Is the Activity/Lesson Plan/Worksheets, leading to Conceptual Learning?

Is the Activity/Lesson Plan/Worksheets, providing relevant learning experiences?

Is the Activity/Lesson Plan/Worksheets, happening in meaningful contexts?

Is the Activity/Lesson Plan/Worksheets, accurate as per recognised standards of the respective discipline/subjects?
Is the Activity/Lesson Plan/Worksheets, promoting feeling of enjoyment of learning?

The checklist to evaluate the Activity/Lesson Plan/Worksheets is much bigger than this, however just by having a glimpse, one can understand that having proper Activity/Lesson Plan/Worksheets and proper Curriculum, it requires more than simple editing skills. In fact, the task of developing proper Activity/Lesson Plan/Worksheets and having proper Curriculum is much more challenging than the term 'hard work'.

Curriculum is not just one thing – Lesson Plans. Preschool Curriculum in general will have at least 72000 elements to be addressed. So, even if one has capability to develop own Curriculum, it shall be remembered that many things might be un-addressed and it will not be Proper Curriculum.
